I visited [REDACTED] who is acting DD/O and discussed with him the sensitivity training provided by OTS. What our conversation amounted to was that I was seeking to determine how accepting the DD/O was of this training course. It turns out that [REDACTED] has not been enthused about the course but has not had the evidence needed to turn it down. Rather, he has been given a series of so-called testimonies from those who have participated as to the course's advantage. I advised that I considered the course a high-risk course and did not find it acceptable. I indicated we would be discussing next our views with OTS but anticipated that the final outcome would be a memorandum from me to the DCI recommending that such training not be continued in this Agency. [REDACTED] felt that he could not speak for Bill Nelson but he opined that DD/O would not oppose such action.
